REGISTRAR-GENERAL'S REPORT

TO THE

HONORABLE ROBERT GEORGE WYNDHAM HERBERT, ESQ.,
COLONIAL SECRETARY, &c., &c., &c.

Registrar-General's Office,
Brisbane, 10th June, 1861.

Sir,

I have the honor to forward to you, for the information of His Excellency the Governor, the Statistical Register of Queensland, for the Year ending the 31st December, 1860. The several tables of which it is composed are compiled from official returns, collected and transmitted to my office by the heads of the various Public Departments, and, in many instances, derived from valuable information, obligingly supplied to me by private individuals. I have spared no pains to make this document as comprehensive, and yet as concise, as the variety of subjects alluded to would allow; and I hope that it will be found to contain a tolerably full and correct statement of the highly prosperous Political, Industrial, Social, and Financial position of this Colony, whose short existence only dates from the 10th December, 1859.

The Annual Register of New South Wales, in which up to the day of Separation the statistics of this portion of Her Majesty's dominions were included, has been accepted by the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, in lieu of the former annual compilations, known as the Blue Book Returns. Desiring to obtain a like favorable reception for this document, I have been careful that it should contain all the information formerly required in those returns; and, in the forms and arrangements of the tables, and the subjects to which they refer, I have followed, as closely as the circumstances of the Colony will permit, the example furnished me by the Registrar-General of New South Wales.

I am aware that by adopting this course and by prefacing with comparative and analytical calculations the tables which are usually considered to form by themselves the official statistics of the Colony, and still more by adding explanatory remarks, and by alluding otherwise than in the said tables to the physical peculiarities, existing institutions, and future prospects of Queensland, I lay myself open to the charge of travelling somewhat out of the strict beaten path sometimes, but I think erroneously, assigned to my office, I trust, however, my exculpation to the undoubted truth of the following quotation :—"Figures, "by themselves, unaccompanied by any explanation of the nature of the subject

"upon which they bear, and especially without any account of the causes that may "have influenced them, or the circumstances by which they were attended, can "lead only to false conclusions, or to no conclusions at all. Figures are the "mere dry bones of statistics, which require to be systematically arranged and "explained, and the principles which they illustrate pointed out before they can "be of real value. In the same way to know merely the population, productions, "or trade of a country or place, at a given time, is of comparatively little value, "unless we possess also the same facts for different periods, in order to compare "them, and to know how far, and in what particulars, progress or decline has "taken place. It is from comparing similar facts of the same country for different "times, or of different countries at the same time, and noting the difference of cir-"cumstances in each, that the statist arrives at a knowledge of those principles "that are constantly at work in society; and hence to confine his operations to "mere figures, or to a particular time, would be to deprive them of their chief "value." I may, also, in further support of these opinions, refer to Lord Stanley's opening address before Section F of the British Association, in 1856, in which he most forcibly points out the importance to the Government of statistical facts, and strongly urges the necessity of establishing a special department of Government, charged with the annual publication of statistics relative to our national affairs. I need hardly point out how thoroughly this recommendation has been approved of and acted up to in England, and I therefore hope that you, Sir, will agree with the above opinions, and accept of them as apologies for the digressions I have made in my attempts to increase the value of this Report as an official record of Queensland Statistics.

CONSTITUTION.

Executive Council.

The existence of this Colony as a separate dependency of the Crown dates from the 10th day of December, 1859, that being the day on which its separation from the Colony of New South Wales was proclaimed; a Constitution had previously been conferred on it, and a Governor-in-Chief appointed by Her Majesty, by letters patent, made on the 6th June, 1859. His Excellency the Governor is assisted and advised in the administration of the Government by an Executive Council, appointed by himself under the Great Seal of the Colony. (Fol. 17.)

Administration of Justice.

The Order in Council made by Her Majesty also on the 6th June, 1859, provides for the government of the Colony, and for the administration of justice; with the latter object in view, it is declared inter alia, that all Laws, Statutes, and Ordinances, which, at the time when the said Order in Council came into operation, were in force within the said Colony, shall remain and continue to be of the same authority as if the said Order in Council had not been made, except in so far as the same are repealed and varied thereby, and all Courts of Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction within the said Colony, and all Charters, Legal Commissions, Powers and Authorities; and all offices—Judicial, Administrative, and Ministerial, within the said Colony respectively, except so far as the same may be abolished, altered, or varied by, or may be inconsistent with the provisions of said Order, shall continue to subsist as if said Order had not been made, unless and until other provisions shall be made, as to any of the matters aforesaid by Act of the Parliament of Queensland.

Civil List.

The said Order in Council further declares, that the sum payable every year to Her Majesty, by way of Civil List, shall not exceed six thousand four hundred pounds, distributed as follows:—

Governor	£2500*
Private Secretary	300
Colonial Secretary	700
Treasurer	700
Judge	1200
Public Worship	1000
Total	£6400

* Increased to £4000 by Colonial Act, confirmed by the Queen.

Legislative Council.

The Parliament of Queensland, called into existence by the above Order in Council, consists of two Chambers, a Nominated Legislative Council or Upper House, and an Elected Legislative Assembly or Lower House. To the former or Upper House, 11 gentlemen were, on the 1st May, 1860, nominated by His Excellency Sir W. Denison, Governor-General of New South Wales; these appointments are, according to the said Order in Council of 6th June, 1859, only to continue for five years. On the 19th of May, His Excellency the Governor of Queensland appointed Sir Charles Nicholson, Bart., to be President of the Legislative Council; and on the 23rd of the same month, four other gentlemen were appointed members by His Excellency the Governor; these last four gentlemen are, in terms of the said Order in Council, members for life. The total number of Members of the Legislative Council was thus, on the 31st December, 1860, fifteen. (Fol. 17.)

Legislative Assembly.

The Legislative Assembly or Lower House, is elected for five years, unless sooner dissolved by His Excellency the Governor. It consists of 26 members, returned by 16 electorates, containing, according to the Electoral Rolls compiled at the beginning of last year, 4790 electors. The electorates may be roughly classed as follows :

6	Urban	Electorates,	containing	2339	Electors,	returning	10 Members.
7	County	„	„	1502	„	„	11 „
3	Mixed	„	„	949	„	„	5 „
Total 16		Electorates,	containing	4790	Electors,	returning	26 Members.

An Act, passed last Session by the Queensland Parliament, 24th Vic., No. 9, entituled "An Act to Abolish the Collection of Electoral Lists," will, it is believed, from the greater facilities for enrolment which it affords, be instrumental in largely increasing the number of electors.

The proportion of members to the number of electors in each class is as follows :—

Urban Electorates.....	1	Member to	233 Electors.
Country „	1	„	136½ „
Mixed Town and Country.....	1	„	190 „

(Fol. 16.)

Qualification.

The only qualification required of a Member is, that he be registered on the Electoral Roll as an elector, and an elector's qualification is, that he be a subject of Her Majesty either by birth or naturalization, that he be of the age of 21 years, and that he be, and shall have been for the six immediately preceding months, in possession of an unencumbered freehold estate worth £100; or that he be, and shall have so been for the six immediately preceding months, the occupier of a house, shop, warehouse, or office of the annual value of £10; or that he be possessed of a leasehold of the annual value of £10, held upon a lease that has three years still to run, or that has already run for that time; or that he be the holder of a license from the Crown to depasture lands; or that he be and have been for the six immediately preceding months in the receipt of a salary of £100 per annum; or that he be the occupant of any room or lodging, and do pay and shall have so paid for the six immediately preceding months £40 per annum for board and lodging; or £10 per annum for lodging only. Practically, this franchise only excludes new arrivals not six months in the colony, aliens, such as Chinese, &c., &c., and a few hundreds of the most worthless, wandering, and improvident members of the community.

Elective Franchise.

I regret that the information afforded by the various Returning Officers, relating to the different elections which occurred last year, is in some instances not so complete as I could wish. This has arisen, I believe, entirely from the attention of those gentlemen not having been, at the time of each election, drawn to the nature of the information they would be requested to supply at the end of the year, so that when the demand was made, but few of them retained at hand the materials necessary to enable them to comply with it; and in two instances the Returning Officers had left the district. I propose obviating this inconvenience for the future by making application at the time of each election.

The total number of electors on the roll last year was 4790; this is in the proportion of 19 to every 100 of the whole estimated population—male and female—at the beginning of last year. It may be useful to compare this franchise with that of New South Wales, which possesses the doubtful advantages of manhood suffrage, subject only to a residence of six months.

	Population, 1st January, 1860.	No. of Electors, 1st January, 1860.	Per Centage.
New South Wales	336,572	69,776	20·73
Queensland	25,020	4,790	19·41

Franchise.

It follows, therefore, that 1½ per cent. more electors are on the roll in New South Wales than in Queensland; or that, if 397 more individuals were placed on the roll in Queensland, the proportion would be exactly the same. This is but a small number to represent the idle, improvident, and dissolute portion of the inhabitants, and shews most clearly that but very few of the industrious and orderly citizens fail to obtain the present franchise; in other words, that none but the former class, and aliens, are excluded.

In those electorates which were contested, and from which returns have been received, 60·07 per cent. of the electors recorded their votes by ballot. The resident and non-resident electors are distinguished in these returns in only twelve instances; in these it appears that, on an average, 10·43 per cent. are non-resident. It must not, however, be understood that they are absentees from the Colony, for the great majority are resident in the Colony, but in a different electorate (Folio 16).

FIRST SESSION OF PARLIAMENT.

Parliament.

The first Session of the first Queensland Parliament was opened by His Excellency the Governor on the 22nd May, 1860, when the Assembly elected as its first Speaker, Gilbert Eliott, Esq. Parliament sat until the 4th of August, was then adjourned until the 21st August, and again sat from that time until finally prorogued by His Excellency on the 18th September. During this Session 20 Acts of Parliament were passed, two of which were reserved for Her Majesty's assent (Folio 21). Many of these measures are of the greatest importance, and calculated to have a beneficial and lasting effect on the future career of this country, such as the Acts regulating the Sale and Occupation of the Crown Lands, the Acts relating to Education and the foundation of Primary and Grammar Schools, and also the Act discontinuing State-Aid to Religion. The two reserved Acts relate to the salary of His Excellency the Governor, and to a modification of the Constitution of the Supreme Court. Two separate Appropriation Acts were also passed during this Session, one providing for the services of the year 1860, and the other for the present year. The sum appropriated for the former was £153,969, for the latter £203,973; or £7 5s. 4½d. per head of the population on 31st December, 1860. The increase is £50,004, the principal items of which are as follows:—

Appropriation Acts.

	1860.	1861.	Increase.
Education	£3,300	£10,000	£6,700
Department of Lands and Works ...	24,216	32,399	8,183
Emigration	6,995	16,855	9,860
Roads	11,610	23,442	11.832
Bridges	3,550	8,750	5,200
Postal Expenditure	12,413	15,061	2,648
Salaries, and all Other Services ...	91,885	97,466	5,581
Total	£153,969	£203,973	£50,004

MUNICIPALITIES.

There are but few localities in which the population is yet sufficiently concentrated to enable the inhabitants to form themselves into Corporations; a beginning was, however, made, and an example set by the two principal towns—Brisbane and Ipswich—which several others have since expressed a desire to follow. It is to be hoped that the extensive and judicious improvements now commencing in the two above-named towns, under the direction of their Municipal Councils, will show the colonists generally the great advantages that may be derived from their adoption, and that at no distant period every district of the Colony will be in a position to take into its own hands the entire control and management of its local affairs, roads, bridges, buildings, streets, &c., &c., to the manifest relief of the Central Government, and to its own great profit and improvement.

Brisbane Municipality.

The Municipality of Brisbane consists of a Mayor and eight Aldermen. The estimated annual value of rateable property within its limits is put down at £47,251 5s. 6d.; on this an annual rate of 1s. in the pound was levied, which, including the rates for a portion of the year 1859, realized £2874 18s. 2d.

The Total Revenue for 1860 was	£5062	18	2
The Total Expenditure for 1860 was	4589	3	7
Leaving, therefore, a balance in hand of	473	14	7

(Fol. 68.)

Ipswich Municipality.

The Municipality of Ipswich also consists of a Mayor and eight Aldermen. The rateable property within its limits is valued at an annual value of £25,000. The rate was fixed at 1s. in the pound per annum, but of this only a portion was levied.

The Total Revenue for six months of 1860, was	1181	19	0
The Total Expenditure ,, ,, ...	1791	10	3
Leaving therefore a Balance Debtor of	£609	11	3

(Fol. 68.)

As even the oldest of these Corporations only came into being during the course of last year, as their revenues are small, and as the streets (if streets they could be called) were handed over to them in the most unformed state with everything to be done, it is obvious that it was not in their power to do more than to execute a few temporary repairs, and to make preparations for the future; the latter, however, judging from the activity now shewn and the magnitude of the works now going on, seem to have been well made.

PHYSICAL.

Area.

The doubt which existed as to the western boundary of the Colony has been removed, and it is fixed at the 141st meridian. The area may, therefore, at a most moderate computation, be roughly put down at 559,000 square miles, or about three times the size of Spain, whilst the area of that portion already occupied is about the same as that of Great Britain and Ireland, i.e. 119,370 square miles.

Climate.

The climate of this territory so far as known, is decidedly healthy, and in the neighbourhood of the sea coast, where, during the summer months the sea breeze is felt, the heat, although sometimes very great, can seldom be called oppressive, except when rain is either threatening or actually falling. January is the hottest and June the coldest month. At Brisbane last year the temperature in the shade varied 44·3 degrees between the means of the hottest and coldest months, and in the shade the thermometer showed a difference of 67·9 degrees between its highest in summer and lowest in winter. The highest point in the sun to which it rose was 125·8. (Fol. 52.)

A true estimate of this climate will never be arrived at without the establishment of Meteorological Observatories at several distant points both of the sea coast and of the interior, for it is well known that the climate of the comparatively low country between the sea and the ranges is essentially different from that of the high table lands to which those ranges ascend, and that the climate of the low flat country to the west varies from both. The climate of the first, at least of the southern portion of it, is tolerably well shown by the Meteorological Table, (Fol. 52), from which it appears that the mean annual temperature at Brisbane was last year 68°·25; this is nearly the same as that of Funchal in Madeira; the range of the thermometer is, however, greater. The mean temperature of our own winter was 61°·5, at Funchal it is about 64°·4; in our summer it was 75°, at Funchal it is about 72°·5. On our high lands the range of the thermometer is far greater, for whilst the heat of the day is at least as great, the nights all the year round are much cooler, particularly in winter, when severe frosts are of frequent occurrence. As you advance northward, the heat and moisture appear to increase in proportion to the diminution of the latitude, but the climate retains its healthy character at least as far north as Port Denison, in latitude 20° 1′.

The following tables, compiled from Strzelecki's work on New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land, will afford the means of making many interesting comparisons between the climates of various parts of those Colonies and of Brisbane :—

These calculations are made from the mean maximum shade and mean minimum shade.

From the above tables it appears that from the southern extremity of Tasmania as far north as Port Macquarie, the increase in the mean temperature of the seasons, as well as of the whole year, maintains a certain proportion to the diminution in the latitude. In the mean temperature of the year it seems to be about one degree of heat to one degree of latitude. Between Port Macquarie and Brisbane this rule seems to be departed from; whether this anomaly be attributable to one year's observations at the latter place not affording a true average, or whether, as I am more inclined to think, it arise from local peculiarities of soil and vegetation, remains to be proved, at present it appears that the mean temperature of Brisbane is within a small decimal the same as that of Port Macquarie.

The following table is calculated to remove the widely spread but erroneous idea that Australia, as compared with other parts of the world, is not blessed with its fair share of rain.

	Average Annual Fall.
London	24·55 inches.
Tasmania	41·28 „
New South Wales	48·60 „
Queensland	54·63 „

The quantity of rain seems to increase steadily as we approach the Equator.

There is one feature which favourably distinguishes the climate of Brisbane, and I believe the climate of the whole of Queensland from that of the other Australian Colonies, and that is the absence of hot winds; the nearest approach to these is a dry, parching, west wind, sufficiently hot to be disagreeable, but which seldom blows for more than a few hours in the morning, and that very rarely, and which seems to have lost the peculiar properties of the hot winds to the south, so destructive to vegetation. If I am rightly informed, it is a curious fact that in Melbourne, where the hot winds are most powerful, they invariably blow from the north; in Sydney where they are not quite so strong, they blow always from the north-west; and in Brisbane the nearest approach to them always comes from the west; the intersection of those lines would seem to point out the birthplace of these destructive tempests.

SOCIAL.

Population.

On the 31st December, 1859, the white population was estimated at 25,020; and on the same day, 1860, at 28,056—the estimated increase during the year being 3036, or 12·13 per cent. The proportion of this increase, arising from the excess of births over deaths, was 758, or 3·03 per cent., a very large per centage (Folio 35); in England the increase arising from the same cause is about 1·11 per cent. Immigration from Europe, paid for, or partly paid for, by Government, contributed an increase of 479 souls, or 1.91 per cent., and the excess of arrivals over departures from the neighbouring colonies supplied the balance of 1799 persons, or 7·19 per cent.

Since I had the honor of addressing to you my first Annual Report, dated the 13th February, 1861, containing the above estimate of the population, a Census has been taken; the compilation is not yet completed, but sufficient advance has been made, to show that the above estimate was so close an approximation to the truth as not to render any alteration of the tables founded on it necessary; if it erred at all, it was on the right side, by making the population appear rather less than it really was—29,000 would have been, perhaps, nearer the truth.

Aboriginal Population.

I can hardly with propriety close this section without some allusion to the Aboriginal Population of the Colony, whose numbers are variously, but very vaguely, stated at from 10 to 15,000. These unfortunate beings are divided into numerous tribes hostile to each other, and speaking different dialects, but all evincing a deeply-rooted aversion to a permanent residence, or to any regular occupation. They are by no means deficient in intelligence, and are possessed like most savages, with extraordinary acuteness of the perceptive organs. Their stature increases as we approach the equator, and many of the men are endued with great physical strength. The tribes that live in the settled districts are annually supplied with blankets and other articles of clothing at the expense of the Colonial Government, and in the neighborhood of the towns or large stations they earn rations or small sums of money, (the value of which they perfectly understand) by doing odd jobs, such as cutting wood, drawing water, running errands, &c., &c.

Immigration.

IMMIGRATION.

The returns from which the annexed tables relating to Immigration are compiled vary slightly from former ones furnished to me; it now seems that the total European Immigration was 479, not 463; consisting of those whose passages were paid in full by Government, numbering 238 and those who paid a portion themselves, the balance being paid by Government 241

Total 479

The total expenditure on account of this Department was £6840 4s. 11d The share of this sum expended in Brisbane being £177 40s. 8d.; if from this be deducted the sum of £939 5s., paid for the passsages from Sydney of a certain number of the above assisted immigrants, and for gratuities paid to the officers of the emigrant ships, it leaves £834 15s. 8d. to be divided among the remaining immigrants, or at the rate of £2 16s. per head for salaries of department and contingencies at Brisbane. The only emigrant ship which arrived last year was chartered at £17 17s. per head per statute adult (Folio 37). The cost of the assisted emigrants, viâ Sydney, except their passages from Sydney to Brisbane, has been paid by the New South Wales Government, and forms an item in the open account between the two Colonies.

On the 1st February, 1860, His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, caused "Regulations for Facilitating Immigration from "the Continent of Europe of Relations and Friends of Persons naturalized in "Queensland," to be published in the Government Gazette. By means of these any naturalized foreigner may, by the deposit of a trifling sum of money, succeed in getting brought out to this country any friend or relative he desires. These regulations extend to all naturalized foreigners the same facilities that were granted to our own countrymen, and are almost a verbatim copy of the Immigration Remittance Regulations issued by His Excellency the Governor-General of New South Wales, with the advice of the Executive Council, dated 10th August, 1857.

The sums required to be deposited are as follows:—

For each Immigrant			between 1 and 12		years of age	..	...	.. £2
Do.	do.	do.	12 and 40	do.		..	..	.. £4
Do.	do.	do.	40 and 50	do.		..	..	.. £8

But single women above 35, and single men above 40 years of age, and persons whose husbands or wives are resident in the Colony, will not be deemed eligible under these Regulations, unless upon payment of a deposit of £12 each; and the persons eligible are mechanics of every description, domestic servants, and all persons of the labouring class, of sound, mental, and bodily health, and of good moral character. The amount of deposits received last year under the Regulations of the 10th August, 1857, was £2555 16s. Immigrants who pay their own passages will receive on their arrival a land-order for £18, and after a residence of two years in the Colony a further land-order for £12. This great inducement to Immigration is given by the 20th clause of an Act of the Parliament of Queensland, 24th Vic., No. 15, passed last session.

EDUCATION.

Education.

On the 7th September, 1860, all existing Primary Schools at that period receiving pecuniary assistance from Government, were, by Act of Parliament, 24th

Vic., No. 6., divided into two classes, called vested and non-vested; the former or vested Schools were at once placed under the control and management of a Board appointed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, entitled the Board of General Education. The previously existing National Board of Education was dissolved, and all their school-houses, lands, &c., &c., were vested in the new body, which from the day of its creation took into its own hands the entire direction of those schools which had previously been managed by the National Board. The second class of schools, called non-vested, are those still permitted to remain more immediately under the supervision of the clergy of the several denominations, and whose buildings and lands are not vested in the Board of General Education, but which, in order to entitle themselves after the expiration of the year 1860 to receive a share of the money voted by Parliament for educational purposes, are required, and are content to conform during school hours, to the rules and bye-laws promulgated by the Board of General Education, for the management of their schools, and during those hours to fulfil all the requirements of that body. The numbers of the two above classes of schools, expenditure, and average daily number of scholars are as follows:—

Vested and non-vested schools.

	No. of Schools.	Average Daily Attendance	Government Expenditure.	Average Cost per Head.
			£ s. d.	£ s. d.
National, now called vested	3	306	2,479 16 8	8 2 0¾
Denominational, now called non-vested	11	757	819 3 0	1 1 7½

(Fol. 38.)

The first year of a new system is always an expensive one, and it may be considered certain that the average cost per head of scholars attending the vested schools will be considerably reduced during the current and future years.

With the exception of Sunday and private day schools of an elementary character, there was, as far as I can learn, no private boys' school, and only one girls' school in the Colony; nor have any steps yet been taken to establish Grammar Schools under the provisions of the Act for that purpose passed last Session.

This dearth of private schools for scholars of a rather more advanced condition must not be presumed to evince any disregard for the education of their children by the middle or upper classes; it arises entirely from our recent connexion with New South Wales, and from the superior advantages necessarily offered by the numerous educational establishments of Sydney—our former capital; it will probably take some time to break the connexion thus formed.

There were in the Colony 21 Sunday Schools under the immediate management of clergymen of various denominations.

(Folio 39.)

There were also 27 elementary day-schools for the instruction of young children of both sexes; the total number of scholars is stated at 827. The Census now being compiled will throw much light on the state of education of the people; until that be completed very little reliable information can be obtained; the Marriage Registers afford a little by showing the proportion of persons married during the year who did not, and it is therefore to be presumed could not, sign their names; the proportion seems to be 21·97 per cent., or rather above one-fifth who could not write.

CRIME.

Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court of Queensland, presided over by one Judge, holds at Brisbane four Criminal Sessions in the year, at Ipswich also four, and at the towns of Toowoomba and Maryborough, each two. The number of criminals tried, their offences, and the proportion who were acquitted, are detailed in Folio 43.

The statistics on the above important subject are highly satisfactory, for they show that although the population increased last year 12·13 per cent., the number of persons tried before the Supreme Court was considerably less than in 1859. The actual numbers were :—

	Tried.	Acquitted.	Guilty.
1859	57	22	35
1860	41	11	30

The number tried in 1860 was therefore 28·07 per cent. less than in 1859, and in proportion to the population on the last day of each year the difference would be still greater.

In 1859 the Centesimal proportion to the population was	·23
In 1860 it was only	·14

A diminution of nearly one-half.

Of the thirty found guilty during the year, twelve were convicted of offences against person, and eighteen for offences against property, and but one suffered the extreme penalty of the law for murder. (Folio 43.)

Inferior Courts.

Leaving the Supreme Court, and referring to the returns received from the various Courts of Petty Sessions, whose proceedings show, perhaps, more correctly than the above, the moral condition of the people, it appears that, excluding drunkards, and those dealt with for offences against the Masters and Servants Act, 694 were taken into custody for minor offences against person or property, and that of this number 391, or 56·34 per cent., were convicted and punished summarily by the various Benches.

Drunkards.

The number of drunkards taken into custody was 715, and of this number 565, or 79·02 per cent., were found guilty, and punished by fine or otherwise.

I regret that the returns from which the above calculations are made are not so correct as they might be, and must not be absolutely depended upon, the general results cannot, however, vary much from the truth; in examining them it must also be borne in mind that in the list of offenders against property, and more especially in the list of drunkards, the same individual will figure many times during the year, and that, therefore, although the number of offences remains the same, the number of offenders is in reality far less than appears to be the case. The number of offences of all kinds tried by the Courts of Petty Sessions is about 3·5 per cent. of the total population on 31st December, but there is little doubt that the real number of offenders is less than 3 per cent. of the population. (Folio 44.)

The criminal statistics of England and Wales show that about one out of every forty-five individuals of the whole population is taken into custody during the year; in the "Statistical Register" of New South Wales, for the year 1859, it is stated that one out of every eighteen, or nearly three times the English proportion "are laid hold of, shut up in a cell, imprisoned, or fined." In this Colony, so far as one year's returns justifies an opinion, it appears that one in thirty-three is taken into custody; it therefore approaches much more nearly than does New South Wales to the proportion of crime and drunkenness existing in England and Wales. As far as the imperfect returns showing the education of persons taken into custody supply information, it seems that 30·08 per cent. could neither read or write, that 15·73 per cent. could read but not write, and that therefore 54·19 per cent. could both read and write. (Folio 44.)

INDUSTRIAL.

Mills and Manufactories.

Under these heads there is little or nothing to allude to. Both capital and labour are far too valuable to be employed with advantage or profit in manufactories or other undertakings exposed to the active and infallibly destructive competition of older communities possessed of both in superabundance. The returns therefore, as might be expected, only show the existence of a few steam saw mills and flour-mills, soap and candle manufactories, and boiling-down establishments.

Mines.

The same may be said of mining, to which little attention has yet been paid beyond sinking a few shafts into one or two of the most accessible coal seams for the supply principally, of steam boats plying on the River Brisbane. The Colony is, however, well known to be possessed of great mineral wealth. Coal is abundant, near the surface, and in many instances close to water carriage. Rich iron and copper ores also exist, and in spite of the sudden failure of the Gold Fields near the town of Rockhampton, those persons best acquainted with the geological formation of the country are confident in their belief that rich deposits of gold will still be found.

AGRICULTURAL.

Agriculture.

The important tables under this head are made up to the 1st April, 1861 advantage having been taken of the collection of the Census on the 8th April, to have the Agricultural Returns collected by the Census Collectors. By this means it is believed that greater care and correctness have been attained than it has been found possible to arrive at when the Police acted as Collectors. As this opportunity can only occur once in five years, it is very desirable that some more efficient means of obtaining this valuable information should be adopted during the intervening years, for trusting it to the Police, unless some special instructions be issued by Government, is useless.

As yet, Agriculture has made little progress, the high rate of wages, uncertainty of getting labour when required, and the difficulty of conveying produce to market—over roads always bad and often impassable—have hitherto made it more economical to import almost all kinds of agricultural produce than to grow them. Sufficient has, however, been done to shew that while the high table-lands of the interior are well adapted to the growth of cereals and other vegetable productions of the temperate zones, the low lands lying near the sea and along the banks of the eastern rivers are capable of producing the most valuable productions and luscious fruits of the Torrid Zone, viz., cotton, sugar, coffee, arrowroot, the pineapple, bananas, mango, &c,. &c. The quantity of land under cultivation on the 1st April, 1861, was 3353A. 1R. (Folio 67); the whole quantity of land, exclusive of town lots for building, alienated from the Crown by grant, is 102,031A. 3R. 2½P.; thus only 3·28 per cent. of the country land held in fee is cultivated. The total quantity of land, including town lots, sold by the Crown last year, is 23,587A. 1R. 21P., and it realized at auction the sum of £37,978 15s. 3d., or at the rate of £1 12s. 2½d. per acre (Folio 47.)

PASTORAL.

Live Stock.

Live Stock and its products, such as Tallow, Wool, Hides, and Horns, are the main, and, at present it may be said, the only productive interest of the Colony. On our pastoral prosperity depends almost entirely our revenue and our trade, and to it we are indebted for our wealth, and for our great and rapidly increasing powers of consumption of British manufactures. The direct revenue derived from this source in the shape of Rents of Runs, and of Assessment of Live Stock, was £55,523 2s., or 41·88 per cent. of the total Revenue, "exclusive of Receipts arising from sale of, and deposits on, Crown Lands." In addition to this direct payment made to the Revenue, the persons engaged in pastoral pursuits, or those immediately dependent on them, consume at least two-thirds of the annual Imports, and thus indirectly pay that proportion of the total Revenue derived from Customs Import Duties, viz., £39,251 5s. 0⅔d. Adding together their direct and indirect payments they may safely be said to contribute £94,774 7s., or 71·49 per cent. of the Revenue, exclusive of that derived from the sale of Crown Lands. If we next turn to the table of Exports, we there see Wool, Tallow, Hides, Horns, &c., &c., valued at £489,638 10s. 3d., and forming 93·53 of the whole Exports of the Colony; the importance therefore of the Pastoral interest can hardly be over estimated.

The Returns collected on the 1st April, (the results of which are given in Folio 53,) show the number of live Stock to be as follows, viz. :—

	Horses.	Cattle.	Sheep.	Pigs.
1st April, 1861	23,504	432,890	3,449,350	7,147

And the following Tables show the Mortgages on Stock and Liens on Wool effected in 1860, to be as follows :—

Mortgages of Live Stock.

MORTGAGES ON STOCK.

No. of Mortgages.	No. of Sheep.	No. of Horned Cattle.	No. of Horses.	Amount Secured.
140	1,121,519	89,213	2968	£748,973 6 6

Liens on Wool.

LIENS ON WOOL.

No. of Liens.	No. of Sheep.	Amount Secured.
43	571,862	£107,961

The total amount secured on Wool and Live Stock is £856,934 6s. 6d., the annual rate of interest may be estimated at 12 per cent. per annum, and will therefore amount in round numbers to £103,000; but as the Registration of encumbrances on live Stock only commenced in Queensland last year, the above Returns do not embrace the Mortgages or Liens on Wool entered into before that period, and do not therefore shew the actual amount of money borrowed, or its security.

In future years it may be interesting to compare the annual value of exports, the produce of our flocks and herds, with the annual amount payable as interest to mortgagees of live stock.

The Customs' returns of Wool, Tallow, Hides, &c., the produce of the above Live Stock, exported during the year 1860, are as follows :—

		Value.	Average Value.
		£ s. d.	£ s. d.
Wool	5,007,167 lbs.	444,188 9 3	0 0 21·29 per lb.
Sheepskins	705 bundles	3,737 13 0	5 6 0 per bundle
Tallow	640 tons	25,628 0 0	40 0 10½ per ton
Hides	18,976	10,277 1 0	0 10 10 per hide
Beef	961 tierces	4,273 0 0	4 8 11 per tierce
Horns, hoofs, calfskins, tongues, &c.	.....	962 15 0	....
		489,066 18 3

Sheep contributed therefore, produce valued at £447,926 2s. 3d., or 2s. 7d. per head; cattle contributed, produce valued at £41,140 16s., or .. 1s. 10¾d. per head.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

Imports and Exports

These returns require some explanation, for at the first glance a very erroneous idea would be formed of our commerce with Great Britain. Owing to our recent position as a dependency of New South Wales, our mercantile transactions still continue to be, to a great extent, centred in Sydney; a large portion of our flocks and herds are mortgaged to Sydney merchants; to them is, therefore, consigned the great bulk of our exports, and from them is received in return nearly the whole of our imports. A connexion of this kind cannot be severed at once, and, so long as it exists, our direct commerce with Great Britain must be very small. New South Wales will not only make a large profit out of the produce of our flocks and herds, but will also get the credit of being larger consumers of British manufactures than is true, and we, on the contrary, must remain liable to misrepresentation. A more serious evil arises, however, from this state of things, and that is, the position in which it places the producers of our staple exports, who are thereby rendered dependent upon the solvency of New South Wales merchants and commission agents. This, to say the least of it, is not satisfactory. To arrive at a true appreciation of our trade with Great Britain, it is necessary to add to the small amount of our direct imports from that country at least nine-tenths of our imports from New South Wales; this will put in its right light our power of consuming British manufactures.

The value of our direct imports from Great Britain is	£ 56,730
The value of 9-10ths of our imports from New South Wales is	612,774
Assumed total value of our imports from Great Britain for 1860	£669,504

Our exports, which in like manner appear as made to N. S. Wales, are in truth made indirectly to Great Britain; their value last year was £522,975.

These sums when compared with our small population, estimated on the 31st December, 1860, at 28,056, are most unusually large.

I regret much that I have access to no reliable records of our commerce in former years: I am, therefore, unable to compare the year 1860 with any preceding it, or to show the large increase that must have taken place since Separation. I have, however, endeavoured to supply the deficiency to some extent by the following compilations, the result of which, as regards Queensland, cannot fail to be highly gratifying to every person interested in her prosperity.

	Population 31st December, 1859.	Imports from United Kingdom, 1859.	Amount per head.	REMARKS.
N. S. Wales	336,572	3,592,775	10·67	£3,636,505 is the total imports, from which I have deducted exports to Queensland, £43,730.
Victoria	530,262	9,176,528	17·30
British North American Colonies	3,000,000	3,159,055	1·15
Mauritius	266,000	601,399	2·66
West Indies	850,000	1,791,931	2·11
Western Australia	14,837	27,193	1·83	The returns do not specify where the imports are from, the total from all parts is therefore given.
Cape Colony	269,000	1,818,080	6·75	If the calculation was made on the white population alone, it would rise to above £10 per head.
	31 Dec. 1860	1860.
Queensland	28,056	669,504	23·86

The above figures may, as far as the Australian Colonies are concerned, be relied on; the information relating to the other colonies, not being obtained direct from official documents, cannot be vouched for, although I believe it to be correct.

Our total imports in 1860 were valued at £742,023, or 26·44 per head our total exports for the same period were valued at £523,476, or 18·66 per head; and they were divided as follows between the four shipping ports:—

	Imports.	Exports.
Brisbane	587,034	350,184
Maryborough	71,456	107,296
Rockhampton	72,384	56,593
Port Curtis	11,149	9,403
Total	742,023	523,476

It is a mistake to suppose these figures show a balance of trade against the Colony. The difference between the two sums arises from the exports being valued before they have paid freight, shipping charges, merchants' commissions, profit, &c., &c., and the imports being valued after all these charges, profit, &c., &c., have been added to the cost price.

To understand this statement thoroughly, it is necessary to look upon money as merchandize, and to bear in mind that, as merchants always seek to make a profit in all their transactions, they will, to the best of their abilities, select such articles, as remittances, as are likely to return them the greatest profit. Unless, therefore, money be in that position, it will not be remitted. It must also be admitted, as a general rule, that merchants always do make profits, and that an occasional loss is the exception, and in no way affects the general argument. Also, that one merchant's gain is by no means necessarily, or even usually, another merchant's loss; and the result will be, as indeed is found to be the case all over the world, that the country which is driving a profitable trade with its neighbours, and in which, as a consequence, wealth and capital are increasing, will always seem to export less than it imports. Facts bear out this statement, and if an excess of exports over imports were a loss, it would be a difficult matter to say from what fund the annual aggregate amount of national losses could be made good.

To return to the trade of Queensland. Another cause has tended to throw it into the hands of the Sydney merchants; a cause removeable, indeed, but which the Government of New South Wales cared not to remove so long as Queensland remained her dependency. I allude to the absence of a safe, commodious harbour for sea-going ships of large tonnage, and to the forced necessity of an intermediate shipment of our exports intended for the English market. The three principal shipping ports of Queensland are situated on three rivers, each of which, it is confidently believed, may, by the labours of a moderately powerful steam dredge, be rendered accessible to ships drawing twenty feet of water; and even should this prove not to be the case, the long line of sea coast offers several natural harbours with every convenience that ships require, though these, from the absence of roads, are at present unavailable for shipping purposes.

That no attempt should ever have been made either to clear the rivers, or, in failure of that scheme, to open communication between the pastoral country and some of the natural harbours north of the 29th parallel, is perhaps hardly to be regretted, as a more liberal policy on the part of New South Wales would, in all probability, have indefinitely deferred the creation of the Colony of Queensland.

The solution of the first problem, i. e. the possibility of clearing the rivers, will not long remain doubtful, a steam dredge being in course of construction for the purpose.

The principal items of Imports into Queensland, during the last year, may be grouped together as follows :—

	£	s.	d.		£	s.	d.
Wearing Apparel and Haberdashery, including Boots and Shoes	198,569	0	0	or	7	1	6½	per head

FINANCIAL.

Revenue and Expenditure.

Although no comparison can be drawn between the accounts current of Receipts and Disbursement for the years 1859 and 1860, inasmuch as the former only embraces one month, I have nevertheless included it among the tables relating to this subject, if it be only for the purpose of showing our financial operations from the first, and also how the account for the year 1860 commenced with a debt of £2213 12s. 11d. (Folio 72.)

The financial transactions for 1860 must be considered very satisfactory, the ordinary Revenue has been more than sufficient to cover the ordinary expenditure, the former being	£ 178,589	8	5
and the latter being	161,503	5	3
leaving a balance credit of	17,086	3	2
after paying off the debt incurred in 1859	2,213	12	11
there still remains a balance credit of	£ 14,872	10	3

In addition, however, to the ordinary expenditure of the Colony, a further sum of £18,600 4s. 3d. (particulars of which appear in Folio) was laid out during the year in furtherance of public works of a durable and lasting nature. As this expenditure can by no means be considered as forming a part of the ordinary expenditure of the year, it is proposed to raise it by loan, and that its repayment be spread over several years. The expenses of Government in a country of vast extent, and in which even within what are called the proclaimed districts, there is hardly an average of one white inhabitant to every fifty square miles, must of necessity be heavy in proportion to the population; bearing in mind moreover, that the first year of self-government may be presumed to be an expensive one, and that the New South Wales Government took good care that Queensland should commence her career without one shilling in her chest, it must be admitted to be a singular proof of prosperity and good government, that this Colony should from the first have been in a position to provide liberally for the ordinary services of the year, not only without incurring debt, but with a sum on hand to the credit of the Consolidated Revenue.

The statement of Revenue and Expenditure is so clear as to require no comment; the absence of statistical records takes awayfrom me the power of showing by comparison with other of Her Majesty's colonial dominions. The prosperity with which Queensland has been blest during the past year. The following tables are little more than a record of things as they were on 31st December, 1860, but they show unmistakeably that we are possessed of all the elements of national wealth and greatness, and that assisted by a wise and judicious legislation, our rich natural resources have been so developed as even in one year to evince in proportion to our population, a larger power of consumption of British manufactures, than that, I believe, of any other of Her Majesty's colonial dominions; a revenue more than equal to all the ordinary requirements of Government; and a population small, but rapidly increasing in numbers and wealth.

In conclusion, I beg most respectfully to draw your attention to the valuable services of the Deputy-Registrar, who has been my sole assistant in the compilation of the following tables, and to whose assiduity it is largely owing that I have been able to prepare this Register for publication at this comparatively early period of the year.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

F. O. DARVALL,

Registrar-General.
